

Instructor: ..... Date: .....

Learner: ..... Regional Branch: .....

Program: ..... Center: .....

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

How was the presentation?

Learning Outcome

Describe necessity, duty, advice, or strong disapproval in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What do you think is the best way to solve a problem in your classroom or workplace?
- Are there any problems in your classroom or workplace you would like to give a presentation about ? Which ones would they be?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about solving problems in the workplace.
- I can talk about reactions and behavior in different situations related to work topics.
- I can talk about my work responsibilities.

Let's Explore!

Did Leonard interrupt Adam's train of thought *during his presentation?

* Your "train of thought" is a series of connected ideas you have.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Adam: Mr. Green, could you hear me alright? Did you get a copy of my handout? I printed out extra copies in case more people showed up. To be honest, I wasn't expecting a lot of people to show up, let alone sit through the presentation. Was it okay? I may have been rambling on for all I know.
- Leonard: If you won't calm down, you must accept that I'm not telling you what I think.
- Adam: You're right. Okay ... I'm calm.
- Leonard: You seem a bit frazzled.
- Adam: I'm just worried my presentation wasn't received well because everyone looked so bored. They may have been more interested in my presentation if there were some more visuals. I could have included a few more here and there now that I think about it.
- Leonard: If you will overanalyze this, you won't get anywhere. Seeing that everyone around me was alert and listening, I wouldn't say they were bored.
- Adam: As I stood at the front of the room, I could see everyone's reactions. Most people didn't seem interested at all.
- Leonard: You could have just been worried and overthinking it which is what I think. However, you might have come across a bit too strong.
- Adam: What do you mean? Was this when people were asking questions?
- Leonard: Yes. If you will correct them constantly, you may not only interrupt their train of thought but it also affects their confidence.
- Adam: I guess ... I'll never know what they were thinking. Unless ... I hand out a survey!
- Leonard: If you will hand out a survey, you must be prepared for both positive and negative feedback.
- Adam: I ought to just ask people what they thought in person.
- Leonard: Hmm ... if you will keep up with that, you must have a chat with Denise.
- Adam: I should just give up then!
- Leonard: Don't do that. If you won't put time and effort into this, you must expect no one else will.
- Adam: That's true and I won't have accomplished what I set out to do!

Let's Practice!

Adam seeks feedback on his presentation.

Instructions: Use the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentence.

Word Bank

could / may have / might / won't have

1. She _____ already done it, for all we know.
2. The boss _____ had the chance to look over the report yet.
3. That wasn't a good idea – you _____ have caused more trouble!
4. You _____ have done just enough to finish.

Let's Practice!

Adam might be overthinking it.

Instructions: Match the beginning of the sentences in Column A with the corresponding part in Column B to make correct sentences.

COLUMN A

1. If you won't agree with me, you must
2. If you will correct them, you not only
3. If you will keep this up,
4. If you will hand out a survey, you must
5. If you won't put time and effort into this, you mustn't expect

COLUMN B

- a. to see changes around the office.
- b. you will be in line for a promotion.
- c. be prepared for both positive and negative feedback.
- d. at least accept that we have different opinions.
- e. interrupt their train of thought, but it will also affect their confidence.

Extension Activity

Prepare a PowerPoint presentation on a topic related to work.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- You need to make a presentation to a group of people at work. With a partner, discuss which topics would be appropriate.
- Choose one topic.
- Prepare a PowerPoint presentation.
- Prepare 5 slides with key words (not full sentences).
- Insert images into your presentation.
- Present your presentation to a small group.
- Answer questions from the audience.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I discuss issues related to work.

☐
☐

I write slides for a presentation.

☐
☐

I present my presentation to a small group.

☐
☐

I answer questions about my topic.

☐
☐

Target Words

- to print out (verb): to use a computer printer to print something e.g. I printed out extra copies in case more people showed up.
- to sit through (verb): to stay until the end of an event such as a meeting or presentation
e.g. To be honest, I wasn't expecting a lot of people to show up let alone sit through the presentation.
- to ramble on (verb): to talk in a confused way, often for a long time e.g. I may have been rambling on for all I know.
- to overanalyze (verb): to examine something in detail more than it needs to be in order to discover more about it e.g. If you will overanalyze this, you won't get anywhere.
- to come across (verb): to behave in a way that makes people believe that you have a particular characteristic e.g. You might have come across a bit too strong.
- to set out (verb): to start an activity with a particular aim e.g. I won't have accomplished what I set out to do!

Learning Points

If-Clauses Expressing Strong Disapproval

When you talk about conditions, you use if-clauses. You can use these to express different opinions or emotions about what someone else did/does/will do or says/said/will say.

You sometimes use will and won't in the if-clause to express strong disapproval. When someone insists on doing something, and you disagree with it, you can express that feeling.

For example:

If you will drive carelessly, you must be expecting to have an accident.

Examples:

- If you won't calm down, you must accept that I'm not telling you what I thought.
- If you will correct them, you not only interrupt their train of thought but it will also affect their confidence.
- If you will keep up with this, you must have a chat with Denise.
- If you will overanalyze this, you won't get anywhere.
- If you will hand out a survey, you must be prepared for both positive and negative feedback.
- If you won't put time and effort into this, you must expect to see no changes around the office.

Learning Points

Modals in the Past to Speculate the Possibility of Something

When you want to talk about the possibility of something happening or not, you can use modals.

The modals for speculating about past possibility are:

may (not) have might (not) have
could (not) have will (not) have

For example:

She may have already done it, for all we know.

The boss won't have had the chance to look over the report yet.

That wasn't a good idea - you might have caused more trouble!

You could have done just enough to finish.

Notice you use the past participle after each of these modal phrases.

Look at the examples from the text:

Examples:

- I may have been rambling on for all I know.
- You might have come across a bit too strong.
- I could have included a few more here and there now that I think about it.
- I won't have accomplished what I set out to do!

